Salvaging Our North Korea Policy

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s)	John Bolton
Source	The Wall Street Journal
Date	March 17, 2008
URL	http://online.wsj.com/article/SB120571176083740265.html
Quote	"China has feared to apply such pressure, worried that it could collapse Kim Jong-il's regime altogether -- an accurate assessment of the regime's limited staying power. Nonetheless, the effect of Chinese reticence has been to preserve Kim and his nuclear program. It is vital that China know this policy is no longer viable."

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position United States should negotiate with North Korea on the topic North Korean nuclear crisis.

This item argues for the position Economic sanctions should be placed on North Korea on the topic North Korean nuclear crisis.

This item argues for the position China should pressure North Korea to give up its nuclear ambitions on the topic North Korean nuclear crisis.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Salvaging_Our_North_Korea_Policy&oldid=7362"

This page was last edited on March 17, 2008, at 18:58.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.