

'Cowboy up,' Alberto Gonzales

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) David Iglesias

Source Los Angeles Times

Date May 23, 2007

URL <http://www.latimes.com/news/opinion/la-oe-iglesias23may23,0,2188119.story>

Quote

“ He went to some of the best schools in America, including Harvard Law. Yet, somewhere along the line, he drank the loyalty Kool-Aid. Watching him testify before the Senate and House was painful for me. He had been a trailblazer for the Latino community, and then, in the space of a few hours of tortured testimony, he became just another morally rudderless political operative.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Alberto Gonzales should resign on the topic 2006 Dismissal of U.S. Attorneys controversy.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=%27Cowboy_up,%27_Alberto_Gonzales&oldid=6660"

This page was last edited on October 19, 2007, at 05:28.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.