The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

| Author(s) | The Wall Street Journal editorial board  |    |
|-----------|--|----|
| Source    | The Wall Street Journal  |    |
| Date      | September 29, 2008   |    |
| URL       | http://online.wsj.com/article/SB122264821035984089.html  |    |
| Quote     | "Today's vote is essentially a pledge of public capital to defend andrebuild the financial system. Some of that capital has already beencommitted via the Federal Reserve, albeit with politicians preferring notto notice. With this vote, Congress is at last taking some ownership forthe mess its policies helped to create by fueling the credit housingmania earlier this decade." | ,, |

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position United States should bail out the banking industry on the topic Economic crisis of 2008.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_Main_Street_Rescue&oldid=8129"

This page was last edited on September 30, 2008, at 18:32.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.