

A border solution that's chock-full of holes

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Steve Chapman

Source Chicago Tribune

Date October 8, 2006

URL http://www.realclearpolitics.com/articles/2006/10/a_border_solution_that_is_full.html

Quote

“ Instead of making their way through urban areas, undocumented foreigners have eluded capture by trekking across remote deserts and mountains, paying human smugglers to shepherd them into the United States. Instead of snaring more illegal entrants, we're now arresting fewer.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position United States should build a fence along Mexican border on the topic Illegal immigration to the United States.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_border_solution_that%27s_chock-full_of_holes&oldid=5935"

This page was last edited on June 13, 2007, at 16:36.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.