After Obamacare, what?

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Orange County Register editorial board

Source The Orange County Register

Date January 31, 2014

URL http://www.ocregister.com/articles/health-599777-obamacare-care.html

Quote

While Obamacare only compounded the problem of government intervention in health care, we were hardly in a free-market paradise before the law. Even prior to Obamacare's enactment, the U.S. had the world's third-highest level of per capita government health expenditures, according to statistics from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development. In response to that challenge, Republican Sens. Richard Burr, Tom Coburn and Orrin Hatch unveiled a new health care reform proposal this past week that seeks to address many of the same problems targeted by Obamacare, but in a fashion much more congenial to those of us who believe that the health care system should be centered around patients rather than government.

"

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Act should not have been passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=After_Obamacare,_what%3F&oldid=17277"

This page was last edited on February 4, 2014, at 20:58.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.