

Barack Obama for President (Washington Post)

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Washington Post editorial board

Source The Washington Post

Date October 17, 2008

URL <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/10/16/AR2008101603436.html>

Quote

“ Mr. Obama is a man of supple intelligence, with a nuanced grasp of complex issues and evident skill at conciliation and consensus-building. At home, we believe, he would respond to the economic crisis with a healthy respect for markets tempered by justified dismay over rising inequality and an understanding of the need for focused regulation. Abroad, the best evidence suggests that he would seek to maintain U.S. leadership and engagement, continue the fight against terrorists, and wage vigorous diplomacy on behalf of U.S. values and interests.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Obama should be elected on the topic United States presidential election, 2008.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Barack_Obama_for_President_\(Washington_Post\)&oldid=8203&oldid=8203)"

This page was last edited on October 20, 2008, at 17:35.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.