

Basic freedoms are being lost in the human rights circus

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Simon Jenkins

Source The Times

Date May 14, 2006

URL <http://www.timesonline.co.uk/newspaper/0,,176-2179499,00.html>

Quote

“ Whether or not foreigners who break British laws should be sent home should not be a matter of human rights, any more than whether prisoners should be released on parole. Such rights will always run up against the conflicting “rights” of others to be protected from them, rights usually as interpreted in a tabloid headline or a political soundbite.”

The following other items refer to this item: It is absurd to calculate human rights according to a cost-benefit analysis

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Act should be repealed on the topic Human Rights Act 1998.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Basic_freedoms_are_being_lost_in_the_human_rights_circus&oldid=5438"

This page was last edited on April 24, 2007, at 00:11.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.