

Before We Bomb Iran ...

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Jonathan Alter

Source Newsweek

Date October 15, 2007

URL <http://www.newsweek.com/id/43363>

Quote

“ "As the antiapartheid movement found, divestment helps put more starch in government sanctions. If the 400 or so European and Asian companies doing business in Iran were forced by global investors to withdraw, they would be upset about it, but less motivated to weaken sanctions imposed by their own countries. Isolation and the threat of economic collapse wouldn't necessarily drive the regime from power, as Gaffney thinks, but it could strengthen the opposition in ways that angry rhetoric from Washington won't." ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Companies should disinvest from Iran on the topic Iranian nuclear crisis.

This item argues against the position United States should attack Iran on the topic Iranian nuclear crisis.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Before_We_Bomb_Iran_...&oldid=6677"

This page was last edited on October 22, 2007, at 16:38.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.