“ The nonprofit and nonpartisan Kaiser Family Foundation recently released the results of a survey that shakes the president's health care law right down to its core. Health insurance premiums rose in 2011 to more than $15,000 per family for the first time in American history. Not surprisingly, Obamacare itself is to blame for much of the increase. The forced requirement to include adult “children” on their parents' insurance up to the age of 26, as just one example, contributed to 20 percent of the increase. ”
