

Bipartisanship is good for both sides

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Anne-Marie Slaughter

Source Los Angeles Times

Date August 9, 2007

URL <http://www.latimes.com/news/opinion/la-oew-slaughter9aug09,0,2060608.story>

Quote

“ We should hear from Gen. David Petraeus, the top military commander in Iraq, in September and then announce a timetable for shifting the nature of U.S. operations in Iraq, withdrawing combat troops as the surge comes to an end and turning to special operations and support of Iraqi troops. That timetable, in turn, is the lever we now need to bring other regional and international actors to the table to create the regionwide Iraq Support Group envisioned by the Baker-Hamilton report.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Iraq Study Group's recommendations should be followed on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Bipartisanship_is_good_for_both_sides&oldid=6435"

This page was last edited on August 21, 2007, at 00:20.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.