

Colombia Gives Free Trade A Chance

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Investor's Business Daily editorial board

Source Investor's Business Daily

Date March 5, 2008

URL <http://ibdeditorials.com/IBDArticles.aspx?id=289612361851156>

Quote

“ In short, while Chavez has wreaked economic ruin to drive military confrontation, Colombia has sped toward a prosperity that would only be enhanced by a free trade pact with the U.S. Denial of such a pact sends a strong signal that Congress has no interest in encouraging Colombia to continue on its positive path. Colombia's refusal to get into a fight with Chavez signals a strong preference for peace through trade and development. If Congress won't approve Colombia's free trade pact after such a demonstration of courage under fire, then it's no better than Chavez.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Agreement should be ratified on the topic Colombia-United States Free Trade Agreement.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Colombia_Gives_Free_Trade_A_Chance&oldid=7342"

This page was last edited on March 6, 2008, at 21:25.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.