This position addresses the topic Darfur conflict.

For this position

“ Some 200,000 are already dead; 2.5 million more could follow. We have another genocide like Rwanda on the horizon. And there is only one entity realistically capable of putting a stop to it: the United States military.”

From Darfur: A Test For Lefties, by Arnold Ahlert (New York Post, September 20, 2006) (view)

“ As a reporter on the barbaric National Islamic Front government of Sudan for more than 14 years, I see no end to this daily genocide, as we speak, other than by military force. But by whom? Is there no such coalition of willing nations? If there is not, what does that tell us of the world in which we live and what has become of us as Americans?”

From Sudanese charged with war crimes, by Nat Hentoff (The Washington Times, March 12, 2007) (view)
