

If You Can't Go to Cedars-Sinai Anymore, Is It Obamacare's Fault?

---

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Jonathan Cohn

Source The New Republic

Date January 6, 2014

URL <http://www.newrepublic.com/article/115991/obamacare-insurance-plans-cedars-sinai-hospital-limits-many>

Quote

“ The assumption that giving up access to hospitals like Cedars means giving up quality care is a powerful one. And it taps into deeply held anxieties about class and status. But while we might think we know what’s good for us medically, the relationship between hospital prestige and hospital quality is a lot weaker than it may seem. Health insurance is changing for some Americans because of Obamacare, but the changes are not the catastrophe many of them think. ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should not have been passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

---

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=If\_You\_Can%27t\_Go\_to\_Cedars-Sinai\_Anymore,\_Is\_It\_Obamacare%27s\_Fault%3F&oldid=17178"

---

This page was last edited on January 7, 2014, at 14:56.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.