

If we really want to escape the grip of human rights law we quit the EU

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Melanie Phillips

Source Daily Mail

Date May 15, 2006

URL http://www.dailymail.co.uk/pages/live/articles/columnists/columnists.html?in_article_id=386283

Quote

“ It is no use saying that such judgments misread human rights law since, because such law consists of a balancing act between competing "rights" requiring the courts to arbitrate between them, no one can be sure how any such disruptive cases will end up. The fact is that ruling after human rights ruling has turned right and wrong on their heads and radically undermined the covenant of responsibility between the individual and the state.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Act should be repealed on the topic Human Rights Act 1998.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=If_we_really_want_to_escape_the_grip_of_human_rights_law_we_quit_the_EU&oldid=3978"

This page was last edited on November 28, 2006, at 17:04.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.