Judge, jury, and torturer

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

| Author(s) | James Carroll | |
|-----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Source | The Boston Globe | |
| Date | September 18, 2006 | |
| URL | http://www.boston.com/news/globe/editorial_opinion/oped/articles/2006/09/18/judge_jury_and_tortur | er/ |
| Quote | "But the White House argument is straightforward: terrorists are such a mortal threat that established due process must be suspended. In particular, the classified secrets of anti terrorist operations must be so closely held that the most basic pillar of jurisprudence the accused's right to know and respond to evidence must be discarded. The legislation was drafted by Franz Kafka." | , |

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should be passed on the topic Military Commissions Act of 2006.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Judge,_jury,_and_torturer&oldid=3167"

This page was last edited on September 18, 2006, at 21:34.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.