Lieberman's Mistaken Idea of Who's Polarizing

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Christopher Durang

Source The Huffington Post

Date 8/8/2006

URL http://www.huffingtonpost.com/chris-durang/liebermans-mistaken-idea_b_26752.html

Quote

"Plus, of course, Lieberman doesn't "tiptoe" around the war issue - he actually supports the war in Iraq - still! -- and thinks it was the right thing to do, and he's in lock step with Bush on all of it. Saddam had nothing to do with 9/11, but either Lieberman thinks he did, or he's a secret neocon who thinks we should invade countries and bring them democracy by a gun. And so far that's working out real well in Iraq, isn't it?"

"

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Lamont should be elected on the topic Connecticut United States Senate election, 2006.

This item argues against the position Lieberman should be elected on the topic Connecticut United States Senate election. 2006.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Lieberman%27s_Mistaken_Idea_of_Who%27s_Polarizing&oldid=3558 ...

This page was last edited on October 5, 2006, at 21:05.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.