Looking Forward in Iraq

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Wall Street Journal editorial board

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date February 14, 2008

URL http://online.wsj.com/article/SB120294879852466801.html

Quote

"Nobody wants to overburden the military, but we can think of nothing that would "break" it more completely than losing a war. For evidence, look at what happened to military readiness and morale in the years after the fall of Saigon in 1975. The Army and Marines in Iraq have adapted from their earlier troubles to a counterinsurgency strategy that is working. General Petraeus should be given as long as he needs."

"

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Coalition troops should pull out on the topic Postinvasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Looking Forward in Iraq&oldid=7260"

This page was last edited on February 14, 2008, at 17:55.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.