

Misleading Spin on Children's Health

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The New York Times editorial board
Source The New York Times
Date October 5, 2007
URL <http://www.nytimes.com/2007/10/05/opinion/05fri1.html>

Quote

“What’s driving much of the Republican response to the bill is the White House’s contention that expanding S-chip is “an incremental step toward the Democrats’ goal of a government-run health system.” The only word that conforms to reality here is “incremental.” S-chip is a tiny blip in the federal budget compared with Medicare and Medicaid, the giant government-financed health systems. House members need to think hard whether it is worth denying coverage to millions of uninsured children just to keep the blip a little smaller.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Program should be expanded on the topic State Children's Health Insurance Program.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Misleading_Spin_on_Children's_Health&oldid=6670"

This page was last edited on October 21, 2007, at 16:57.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.