

No One Died at Healthcare.gov: The Phony Crisis of Obamacare

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Dean Baker

Source The Huffington Post

Date November 18, 2013

URL http://www.huffingtonpost.com/dean-baker/no-one-died-at-healthcare_b_4299399.html

Quote

“ In addition to providing security, millions of people who are working at jobs that they hate will no longer feel the need to stay there in order to get insurance. That is a big deal. In fact it's a bigger deal than almost any other piece of legislation that Congress has passed in the last three decades. ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should not have been passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

This item refers to the previous opinion item Daring to Complain About Obamacare.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=No_One_Died_at_Healthcare.gov:_The_Phony_Crisis_of_Obamacare&oldid=17039"

This page was last edited on November 19, 2013, at 19:27.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.