

Overruling Obamacare

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Yuval Levin

Source The Weekly Standard

Date December 19, 2010

URL http://www.weeklystandard.com/articles/overruling-obamacare_523539.html

Quote

“ If, as the administration argues, a person’s decision not to purchase health insurance invites the government to compel him to purchase it because being uninsured can create a burden on the economy (by requiring taxpayers to help shoulder the cost of his care if he gets sick), then there is really no limit on the government’s reach at all. By the same logic, a person’s choice not to jog or eat broccoli could add to the burden of our health care costs, so the government could mandate that the person exercise and eat his vegetables.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Act should not have been passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Overruling_Obamacare&oldid=13655"

This page was last edited on December 19, 2010, at 21:25.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.