

The Case Against Our Attack on Libya

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Michael Walzer

Source The New Republic

Date March 21, 2011

URL <http://www.tnr.com/article/world/85509/the-case-against-our-attack-libya>

Quote

“ Foreigners can provide all sorts of help—moral, political, diplomatic, and even material. Maybe neighbors, who share ethnicity and religion with the Libyan people, could do more. But a military attack of the sort now in progress is defensible only in the most extreme cases. Rwanda and Darfur, where we didn’t intervene, would have qualified. Libya doesn’t. ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position United States should impose a no-fly zone on the topic 2011 Libyan uprising.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The_Case_Against_Our_Attack_on_Libya&oldid=14189"

This page was last edited on March 21, 2011, at 18:31.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.