

The Observer view on net neutrality

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Observer editorial board

Source The Observer

Date December 17, 2017

URL <https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2017/dec/17/net-neutrality-fundamental-society-must-not-be-unregulated-private-monopoly>

Quote

“ So the fight for net neutrality must be seen in the context of an even bigger debate. Is the internet something to be ruled over by all-mighty private companies with little oversight from the state? Or do we recognise it as too fundamental to our security, to the way we communicate, and to our economy, to leave it vulnerable to the cowboy tactics so often deployed when the private sector spots an unregulated monopoly? ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Net neutrality should be repealed on the topic Net neutrality in the United States.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The_Observer_view_on_net_neutrality&oldid=29452"

This page was last edited on December 25, 2017, at 15:23.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.