

The Stimulus Package Is More Debt We Don't Need

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Tom Coburn

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date February 3, 2009

URL <http://online.wsj.com/article/SB123371083449746103.html>

Quote

“ Less than 10% of the bill could be considered true stimulus, if one assumes tax credits and infrastructure spending will jolt the economy. The other 90% of the bill represents one of the most egregious acts of generational theft in our nation's history, with taxpayer money going to special-interest earmarks, an ill-conceived bailout to states, and permanent spending increases that expand government's reach in areas like health care and education.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should be passed on the topic American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The_Stimulus_Package_Is_More_Debt_We_Don%27t_Need&oldid=8974"

This page was last edited on February 4, 2009, at 17:07.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.