The man who was not there

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Chicago Tribune editorial board

Source Chicago Tribune

Date April 24, 2007

URL http://www.chicagotribune.com/news/opinion/chi-0704230355apr24,0,7153548.story

Quote

"In his appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee last week, it was sometimes hard to recall that Alberto Gonzales is the attorney general of the United States. More often, he sounded like an outside consultant, with no operational authority at the Justice Department and only a limited knowledge of what was going on in the offices around his. The difference is that when outside consultants are no longer of any use, they move on."

9

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Alberto Gonzales should resign on the topic 2006 Dismissal of U.S. Attorneys controversy.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The man who was not there&oldid=5459"

This page was last edited on April 24, 2007, at 16:40.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.