

U.S. must prove it's a staying power

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Mark Steyn

Source Chicago Sun-Times

Date November 12, 2006

URL <http://www.suntimes.com/news/steyn/132340,CST-EDT-steyn12.article>

Quote

“ It has been a long time since America unambiguously won a war, and to choose to lose Iraq would be an act of such parochial self-indulgence that the American moment would not endure, and would not deserve to. Europe is becoming semi-Muslim, Third World basket-case states are going nuclear, and, for all that 40 percent of planetary military spending, America can't muster the will to take on pipsqueak enemies.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Coalition troops should pull out on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=U.S._must_prove_it%27s_a_staying_power&oldid=3853"

This page was last edited on November 14, 2006, at 15:11.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.