Why We Shouldn't Bail Out the Big Three Automakers

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s)	Eric Torbensen
Source	New York Post
Date	November 16, 2008
URL	http://www.nypost.com/seven/11162008/postopinion/opedcolumnists/why_we_shouldnt_bail_out_the_big_three_a_138991.htm?pag	je=0
Quote	"The flaw in this dire outlook is simple; car production and buying would not shut down in a bankruptcy. Life goes on at bankrupt companies - cars and trucks would still come off assembly lines and head to dealers. The key would be explaining the process carefully to assure folks that no one is going away."	,,

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position United States should bail out the automobile industry on the topic Economic crisis of 2008.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Why_We_Shouldn%27t_Bail_Out_the_Big_Three_Automakers&oldid= 8312"

This page was last edited on November 16, 2008, at 18:51.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.